

I CLAIM:

1. A new and distinct cultivar of Chrysanthemum plant that displays:
  - (a) a low compact, well-branched, and generally uniform and spherical growth habit,
  - (b) during October a profusion of attractive decorative light yellow double blossoms,
  - (c) dark green leaves that contrast well with the light yellow blossoms, and
  - (d) an ability to grow well in pots to provide an attractive potted gift plant;

substantially as herein shown and described.
